Adjudicator: Dr. John Eacott

John Eacott started playing trumpet aged seven making his professional debut (paid two shillings and sixpence by his father) with the Eacott Family Band. After studying music at Sussex University and Guildhall School of Music he began a career bridging mainstream and more experimental forms of music touring the world with pop group Roman Holliday and then as composer member of the anarchic jazz group Loose Tubes. During the 1990s John focussed on composing for Theatre, TV, Film and computer games. Composition and arranging credits include theatre show Gormenghast (1991-2007), Timon of Athens for the RSC (1998), Escape to Life (2000) with Vanessa Redgrave and Alfie (2003) with Jude Law and Susan Sarandon. As a session trumpeter John has performed and recorded with Georgie Fame, Stereo MCs, Goldie, Damon Albarn, the West End production of Five Guys Named Mo, soundtracks for TV and film and a memorable night performing in London alongside jazz legends Johnny Griffin, Kai Winding and Kenny Clarke. In the last few years he has been developing Flood Tide in which large orchestral performances are composed directly from the flow of tidal water including Thames Festival 2009, Stratford-Upon-Avon River Festival 2009, and See Further Festival at London Southbank 2010. There are more Flood Tide performances scheduled this year in Ipswich and for Estuaire Festival, Nantes, Brittany. More information is available about Flood Tide at: www.informal.org.
